Keep your kids from being exposed online.

No matter what their age, if your kids are online, now's the time to talk about online safety.

For kids with little life experience, the online world can leave them vulnerable to all kinds of dangers and influences. In situations like these, their best line of defence starts with you.

As a parent or carer, having the conversation about online safety is one of the most important things you can do. Our eSafety website is designed to help you understand the issues and give you the tools, tips and advice you need to better protect your kids against sexting, online predators and cyberbullying.
